

UPVC Sash Windows Made For You.

This elegant type of window is a popular replacement in period houses.

Giving your home a sophisticated charm and style you won't achieve from a standard casement window.

Real timber windows can be expensive so homeowners look to more affordable and fewer maintenance options such as uPVC.

Georgian bars & Astragal bars

Georgian Bars

- The Georgian Bars are fitted inside the double-glazed panel to give the appearance of smaller panes of glass.
- The bars are installed during the making of the double-glazed panel and sit between the 2 panels of glass within the sealed double-glazed unit.

Georgian bars & Astragal bars

Astragal bars

- These bars are fitted to the outside of the double-glazed unit.
- Stands proud of the glass.
- When astragal bars are fitted to a window or door, the sealed glass unit will contain a back-to-back or duplex bar.
- Astragal bars sit on the outside of the glass, replicating the old glazed bar.

Wide Selection of Frame Styles

We offer a range of sash window styles to match your old windows as closely as possible and maintain the signature “design statement” of your home.

We can replace bay-style windows including splay and box bay windows. These are a common feature in older properties and when combined with a sliding sash window the installed appearance is very impressive.
